Young Greater Boston residents are interested in a variety of training opportunities, especially on-the-job training for advancement and certificate courses or other education.

Q37. Please select how likely you would be to participate in the following types of job trainings.

Paid apprenticeship or internship in new field of work

Unpaid internship in new field of work

Certificate course or other education during work hours paid by your employer

Certificate course or other education outside of work hours you pay for yourself

On-the-job training for advancement in your current field of work

• The popularity for “on-the-job training for advancement” aligns with the lower level of satisfaction with opportunities for promotion at work, suggesting a desire for trainings with explicit potential or promotion or raises.

Young residents prioritize work-life balance and wages when seeking a job, while other priorities are shaped by current work experience.

38. Thinking about your ideal job and workplace, what qualities do you prioritize most when seeking a job? You may select up to three.

- Manual or trade labor workers (31%) more likely to prioritize location convenience.
- Office-based professionals especially likely to prioritize wages (40%) and benefits (30%).
- Service industry workers more likely to prioritize job security (32%).
- Healthcare professionals more likely to prioritize a respectful workplace culture (30%).

- Women ages 20-24 especially likely to prioritize schedule flexibility (36%).
- Women (22%) more likely to prioritize coworkers they get along with when seeking a job.

Transportation

Driving and walking are the most common ways of getting around Greater Boston,

Q39. What modes of transportation do you use most? Please select up to three modes you use most.

Q40. When it comes to transportation and mobility in the Boston area, how easy or difficult is it for you to get where you need to go on a daily basis?

Q41. What kind of impact does public transportation in Greater Boston have on the quality of your everyday life?

Conclusion

Investments in on-the-job training and advancement opportunities may incentivize young people to grow in their current place of employment.

- The appetite for various training opportunities, and to advance in their careers more generally, suggests motivation among young residents to participate in trainings if offered.
- While there is some interest in switching jobs or career fields, the trainings that offer opportunities to advance in current field of work were most popular, suggesting that offering these opportunities may encourage retention.

Young residents are finding it easier to build community, but access to affordable, third spaces could continue this momentum.

- Affordability and work-life balance are top themes throughout the survey.
- Even though the majority of young residents find it easier to build community now compared to 2023, many rely on social media and the amount of time they have lived in the area to make connections.
- An interest in affordability, work-life balance, clubs, and activity groups suggests that access to affordable, third spaces — social environments outside of home and work — may help young residents build community.

Support in housing and healthcare could help improve young residents' quality of life.

- Housing that is affordable has high importance throughout survey, impacting not only finances but also social opportunities.
- The importance of healthcare for young residents has increased significantly since 2023. To encourage retention, employers should emphasize how they can offer support in this area.
